Choosing a nanny is a major decision. You are entrusting a near-stranger with the daily care of your children, and are inviting her into your home. These simple facts underscore how essential it is that a family takes every necessary step to match its needs with the right caregiver. In addition, it is important to understand the more technical aspects of hiring a nanny, like establishing a fair wage, recognizing tax and payroll obligations, developing a work agreement, and knowing what to do when problems arise. Being prepared at the outset protects you as well as your nanny.
Getting Started

ENVISION YOUR IDEAL NANNY
Each family has different needs when it comes to a nanny. Some are comfortable hiring a less experienced nanny whose enthusiasm for her new job is contagious, while others prefer to hire someone with deep experience that matches their family situation. Some are looking for someone to live in the home and cook and clean, while others have less intensive needs. In addition, needs differ based on the age of your children and whether any of your children have special needs. Personal preference also plays a role.

In two-parent households, it is important that parents collaborate and agree on the variables they see as most important by making a list of what they want in terms of characteristics, level of experience, and the range of duties the nanny will take on. It is helpful to have a list of nanny requirements in writing before the interview process begins, as well as an established budget to keep things on track during salary negotiations.

CHOOSE YOUR RECRUITING TOOL
As you know, there are a number of resources for finding a nanny. Scanning newspaper ads, asking local networks via word of mouth, and hiring a nanny agency remain the primary choices families make as they begin the nanny search. Nanny agencies may charge fees of $1500 to $5000 or more while fees for online services are lower. Note that online services provide limited nanny screening and do not meet candidates in person. There is always a trade-off in time and energy when exploring local nanny talent, conducting adequate screening, and matching nanny capabilities and job preferences with family needs.

See our chapter on selecting a quality nanny agency, or investigate nanny agencies in your area in the INA Business Member Directory.

The Takeaway

Make a list of the characteristics, level of experience, salary range and duties that matter most to you.

Choose your recruiting tool wisely, weighing time and energy against cost.

Reflecting on your personal and family needs before you begin will set you up for success in the nanny search.
The Interview

Conducting a good interview is key to finding the right nanny for your family.

Considering the level of importance, nanny interviews are best conducted in person. But advanced communication is becoming more and more popular as nannies are being hired from around the world; video chat is perfectly acceptable for an interview.

Be sure to ask open questions – you want a longer, more thought-out answer, instead of just a one-word response. Keep these tips in mind:

- Find out how the nanny would respond to a certain situation. This allows you to get a more concrete idea of how the candidate will care for children.

- Ask about scenarios, rather than general questions. For example: "What would you do if my 3 year old disobeyed your request?" This will give you an idea of a nanny’s perspective on discipline.

- Formulate questions to reveal information about key qualities, such as dependability, initiative, and problem solving.

- Ask all of the candidates the same questions.

- Find out how familiar the nanny is with children of similar ages to your own.

- Disclose and discuss any special medical, developmental, or emotional needs your kids have.

In the end, you’ll evaluate the results of the interview using both an objective analysis of how the candidate performed, and your own intuition as to whether the candidate is a good fit.

Background Checks

Before you extend an offer to a nanny, it’s time to check her references and perform a background check. You’ll want to contact at least two references who aren’t related to the nanny.

A prospective employer is required to obtain permission to perform a professional background check, along with key identifying information. You can expect to pay $50-$200 for a full criminal background check. See the INA Business Member Directory for background investigation services. You can purchase a professional background check in as little as two days.

The Takeaway

An interview is a balance between gathering information, assessing personal chemistry and checking background data.
THE WORK AGREEMENT

Once you’ve chosen your nanny, it is advisable to create, present and agree to a specific work agreement that outlines the terms of employment. The work agreement needs to be written and signed before your nanny actually starts the job. A work agreement is the key to protecting yourself, protecting your nanny, and providing clear expectations of the nanny’s rights and responsibilities. Be sure that your agreement includes:

- Basic information like the date, your name, the nanny’s name, and the child’s or children’s names
- Work hours
- Rate of compensation
- When paychecks will be issued
- Requirement to obtain first aid and CPR training by a certain date
- Childcare responsibilities
- Housekeeping responsibilities
- How issues like tardiness will be handled
- Expectations about logging activities and meeting time between parent and nanny
- Who to contact in case of emergency, and for day-to-day issues
- Whether or not the nanny has use of a family car, and their responsibilities and privileges if they do
- Paid time off
- Holidays, and whether they’re paid or unpaid
- Payment for 52 weeks/year of work, even if the family is out of town or not using the nanny’s services
- Employer contribution to taxes
- Provision of health insurance
- Provision of automobile insurance
- Tax withholdings from the employee’s paycheck

You’ll also need to fill out paperwork so that your nanny is able to take your children to the doctor, pick them up from school, and otherwise perform duties you normally would handle.

The Takeaway

Articulate precise tasks and expectations with a work agreement.
Determine salary, pay schedule, vacations and time off before you hire.
Compensating your nanny with salary and benefits is just one part of the equation.

WAGES & BENEFITS

WAGES
The wage for your nanny should always be a gross, per-hour wage, rather than a true salary. Be careful to consider applicable overtime rules. You should start your nanny out at a base wage, usually based on factors like the local cost of living and average nanny salaries in your area. Your decision may also be based on factors like how much experience the nanny has, and how extensive her household duties will be. Note:

- Your nanny may expect to be reimbursed for mileage spent running errands for the family

- If your nanny works full time, she will expect paid vacation; she will also expect to be paid even if the family is on holiday.

- For both legal and job satisfaction reasons, you should never be late with or miss a payment

You’ll also want to review and/or raise the wage every year or so, based on both merit and the cost of living. The cost of living (COLA) adjustment will take into account inflation, local cost of living, and whether or not there is inflation in nanny salaries in the area. This can be between 1%-3% each year.

A wage review based on merit will take into account how well the nanny meets or exceeds expectations. For example, you might not give any increase for a nanny who consistently does the bare minimum, while a nanny who does excellent work might receive an increase of 3%. On average, it’s common to see a nanny’s salary rise by 3%-6% each year when both merit and COLA adjustments are combined.

The Takeaway
Discuss tax reporting and responsibility as part of the job interview.
Keep cost of living adjustments and merit raises in mind when determining your nanny’s salary.
WAGES & BENEFITS

HEALTH INSURANCE BENEFITS
Offering health insurance can be a positive benefit for the nanny and family alike. Whatever health insurance premiums you pay as the employer aren’t taxable income for the employee, which means that the nanny doesn’t pay taxes on the premium, and you don’t pay the 10% employment tax on it. The IRS may also offer a tax credit to certain small employers who provide health insurance to their employees.

When your nanny is able to take care of her health, you’ll see numerous benefits. Preventative care and fast treatment for acute problems means fewer missed days of work. Health insurance also makes the job more desirable, meaning that your nanny is less likely to change jobs.

VACATION TIME, SICK TIME, PAID TIME OFF
Although not required by federal law, paid time off is another feature that helps improve retention, satisfaction, and work performance. Most of the time, nannies receive 5-15 days of paid time off (PTO), which encompasses both sick and vacation days. You can either offer sick, personal, and vacation days separately, or offer a compensation package with 10-15 Flex Days, which can be used for either sick time or vacation as the nanny wishes. The work agreement should include an agreement on how these days can be scheduled.

PTO accumulates over time, usually after a 2-3 month period during which PTO does not yet accumulate. For example, if a nanny gets 10 paid days per year, she will earn .1923 days per week. To prevent employees from hoarding PTO and taking excessively long trips, you can establish a policy where only a certain number of days can be taken at a time, or only a certain number of days carry from year to year. If your nanny leaves voluntarily, she should be paid for any accrued vacation time and personal days, but not sick days.

In addition, you will want to pay your nanny for certain minimum federal holidays – New Year’s, Memorial Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. You may also include additional holidays at your discretion.

The Takeaway
Offering health benefits and paid time off will contribute to your nanny’s overall job satisfaction.

When your nanny is able to take care of their health, you’ll see numerous benefits.
The tax requirements for employing a nanny are nuanced; educating yourself about them is essential.

CONTRACTOR VS. EMPLOYEE

Many people wonder whether it’s possible to employ a nanny as an independent contractor since it lessens one’s own tax obligations. However, nannies are rarely true independent contractors. An independent contractor must be able to set her own hours, provide her own equipment, and be able to work for others. For example, when you hire someone to repair your house with his own tools, he is an independent contractor. If your nanny provides in-home services, earns more than $1900 per year, and is over 18 years of age, she is an employee, not an independent contractor. (2014)

You are responsible for providing your employees with a W-2 form each year, rather than the 1099 which is used for independent contractors. If you have an employee and not an independent contractor, issuing a Form 1099 form is considered to be misclassifying employees and can lead to penalties.

As an employer, you’ll be responsible for paying federal and state employment taxes, which cover costs like Social Security and Medicare at the federal level, and unemployment insurance taxes at the state level. You file for the Federal Employment Tax on your own annual Federal Tax Return, on Form 1040 Schedule H. It’s a good idea to make quarterly payments using 1040ES vouchers, which are credited to your tax account. You can also pay your state wage taxes on a quarterly basis.

Filing taxes requires significant organization regarding the employment, including compensation, benefits, taxes, and insurance. This is another reason why it’s so important to keep good records for the financial aspects of employing a nanny.

The Takeaway

In almost all cases, your nanny should be given a W-2 tax form, not a 1099 tax form.
Talk to your accountant or tax advisor to reduce the risk of filing incorrectly.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND WORKERS COMPENSATION

Your federal and state taxes will cover unemployment insurance, which is used to provide unemployment benefits to employees who lose their jobs. Unemployment is provided only to employees who lose their jobs due to issues like layoffs or no-fault terminations. Those who are fired for misconduct or who leave voluntarily are not entitled to unemployment benefits.

Workers compensation provides coverage for injuries sustained on the job. Whether or not your state requires you to carry insurance for workers compensation, there is a serious risk when you don’t purchase it, as you can be held personally responsible for the cost of work-related accidents. This can amount to thousands of dollars for a single accident. Workers compensation insurance is designed to protect both the employee and the employer.

Although some Homeowner’s Insurance Policies cover workers compensation for domestic employees, you should not assume that is the case. Instead, check with your insurance company to find out. If you do need to purchase insurance, you can first look at commercial insurers, like State Farm and Allstate. Most providers require that you also have another insurance plan with them in order to obtain a workers compensation plan. There are also state insurance pools for those who cannot get commercial coverage, but these should only be used as a last resort because they tend to be quite expensive.

LOCAL / STATE VARIANCES IN REGULATION

Workmen’s compensation is a requirement in a number of states. If you live in Alaska, California, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oklahoma, or South Dakota, you must have worker compensation insurance for both full and part-time domestic employees. In Colorado, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Utah, Washington, it is only required for full-time domestic employees. In other states, it’s not required for households with a single domestic employee. Make sure you visit your local and state websites to determine guidelines for domestic employers.

The Takeaway

Know local requirements for Workmen’s Compensation and Unemployment Insurance for your household employee.
Be vigilant when using nanny employment services. Selecting the right resource can make all the difference.

IDENTIFY A QUALITY NANNY AGENCY

Here are 10 recommended factors that will help families select a quality nanny agency.

1. Willingness to Comply with Industry Best Practices
The best agencies will commit to professional excellence and agree to conduct business in accordance with industry recognized best practices. You can identify these agencies by their association with organizations that require this of their members. INA is an example of such an organization.

2. No Shortcuts
Look for an agency that conducts in-person interviews of 100% of their candidates.

3. Pre-Screening of All Referred Nannies
The best agencies screen all applicant references before making any referral to families. Ask an agency about its reference checking methodology, including its willingness to share copies of reference checks with you.

4. Use of Proven Skill Assessment Tools
Agencies that use industry tools such as the INA basic skills exams as part of nanny candidate evaluations demonstrate a strong commitment to best practices.

5. Adequate Time with Families to Assess Needs
Agencies that spend the necessary time to perform a needs assessment with their clients have a higher likelihood of sending along applicants who meet a family’s very specific needs and qualifications.

6. Transparency Regarding Fees and Guarantees
Ask the agency about all fees and their performance guarantee or replacement policy in writing. Make sure you understand the financial and performance obligations of both your family and the agency.

7. Help With a Written Work Agreement
A nanny placement agency committed to the long term success of the nanny/family relationship will provide a pro-forma written work agreement and facilitate the nanny compensation offer.

8. Advocacy and Support for Nanny Candidates
The best nanny agencies will support and provide training opportunities to their nanny candidates. Most will support and finance nanny membership of INA. The most experienced nannies will work with an agency they believe looks after the interests of both the family and the nanny.

9. Business Experience
Inquire about how long an agency has been in business, as well as the professional, educational and industry affiliations of the agency owners.

10. Background and Security Screening Practices
Typically an agency will perform pre-employment background screening after the nanny has received and accepted a job offer. However, there are recommended practices that the best agencies follow to make sure families will see safe and reliable candidates.
YOUR ROLE AS AN EMPLOYER

Understanding your role as an employer will help guide you in the relationship with your nanny.

There are certain practices related to issues like salary changes, feedback, and health insurance which will ensure fair compensation, good communication, clear expectations, and employee satisfaction.

CHANGE OF DUTIES MEANS A SALARY REVIEW
Family life is often unpredictable, and a nanny’s duties may change as you increase her hours, add more housekeeping responsibilities, or have a new baby. If you don’t compensate appropriately, it can seriously harm your relationship with the nanny, and even lead to her leaving the job. The appropriate salary adjustment depends on the change, but for a new baby the usual increase is $1-3 per hour, or 10-20% of the nanny’s earnings.

FEEDBACK
Communication is key to a good relationship between you and your nanny, and the time to document issues and give feedback is at the moment when you notice an issue with performance. Although you will perform an annual evaluation, you should communicate with your nanny on a daily basis — in most cases, nothing on the evaluation should be a surprise.

HEALTH INSURANCE AS A TAX BENEFIT
Many families pay 50%, or $150-200 per month, of the health insurance, while allowing the nanny to select her own policy. When the salary is reviewed and raised annually, you might agree with the nanny to cover all of the insurance as part or all of the pay raise. This has tax benefits for both you and the nanny, so it’s often a mutually beneficial choice.

ALWAYS DOCUMENT
Documentation is key to protecting yourself and your employee. Should any tax or personal disputes come up, you should be able to prove that you upheld your end of the agreement. In addition, keeping the employment transparent and on the books is essential for your nanny, who will need Social Security, proof of employment, and other benefits when the job ends or if she leaves.

The Takeaway

Flexibility will keep the employer-nanny relationship on course when changes in family life arise.

Consistent reviews will allow your nanny to execute her duties with efficiency.
As in any work environment, there will be a few bumps in the road.

When Things Go Wrong

Disagreements and mistakes are a potential issue in any employee-employer relationship, but they’re an especially big issue with something as important as childcare. Keep these issues in mind to ensure that you hire a nanny who’s a good fit, who will manage problems effectively well after she’s hired:

• Evaluate whether you and the nanny have similar philosophies on childcare and child discipline

• Have realistic expectations about how much the nanny will be able to help with housekeeping duties

• Always have a work agreement in place before the nanny starts working

• Resist the urge to micromanage – there is a balance between setting expectations, and failing to provide flexibility

• Communicate regularly about any issues that arise, as they come up

• If problems occur along the way, conduct an interim evaluation instead of waiting for the annual evaluation

• Keep notes about the issues as they occur

The Takeaway

Keep the lines of communication open so that issues are discussed and resolved quickly and efficiently.

Fair Labor Standards Act Compliance: Household employees are hourly employees entitled to pay for every hour they work at a rate that may not be less than the federal, state and, if applicable, local minimum wage rate. Additionally, overtime (time-and-a-half) must be paid for each hour over 40 in a 7-day workweek. Generally, live-in employees are exempt from overtime requirements, however, certain states such as CA, HI, MA, MD, MN and NY have special overtime requirements for live-in employees.

- PTO will accrue pro-rated on a per pay period basis.
- PTO accrual begins at the start of employment. PTO may be used after 90 days of employment.
- SCHEDULING: Vacations are to be mutually agreed upon by the employer and nanny. Notice of one week is requested for any appointments, etc. which may cause you to be late or leave work early.

---

1. You are likely to receive a number of “extra” holidays throughout the year - days where we choose to take the day(s) off and go away with the children; however, these extra days vary from year to year.

2. Part time employees, only if holiday falls on a regularly scheduled workday.

3. Paid time off is any time not worked by an employee for whom the regular rate, a fixed or a prorated amount of pay, was accrued and later paid to the employee. We grant paid time off to give you down time and a chance to schedule and deal with non-work related issues.

Paid Time Off (PTO) may be used for vacation, sick, or personal time.

Families are not required by Federal law to provide paid time off. Different localities and states, however, do impose PTO requirements. If employment is in California, Hawaii, Massachusetts, New York, Washington DC or San Francisco we invite you to phone HomeWork Solutions at 800.626.4829 for more detailed information.
